

Dear Drs. Clifton and Logan,

Thank you very much for the opportunity to revise and resubmit the article “Learning words by assuming speakers are informative” to Cognitive Psychology. We appreciate your and the reviewers’ thoughtful feedback and we have taken it into account in our revision. Below is a detailed list of revisions that we have made in response to the individual points raised.

We apologize for the delay in submitting our revision – the delay was caused by the time it took to collect data for Experiment 4, which includes several controls relevant to the points raised by the reviewers, as well as a replication of the original developmental effect with a larger sample.

We look forward to hearing from you regarding the manuscript; please do not hesitate to contact us if you have any further questions or concerns.

Sincerely,

Michael C. Frank and Noah D. Goodman
